Dr. Hospers' Speech

FEB. 1, 1977, FULLERTON COLLEGE

Society for Libertarian Life is proud to sponsor a speech by Professor John Hospers of the University of Southern California. Dr. Hospers' speech will be held at Fullerton College (formerly known as Fullerton Junior College) on February 1 (Tue.) at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are only $2 each and the topic is Will Freedom Survive Until 1984? So don't wait until 1984 to hear Hospers.

Hospers' background is rather impressive to even those who never have heard of him. First of all, Hospers wrote the classic LIBERTARIANISM (1971) along with seven other books. Hospers is the former Director of the School of Philosophy at USC. He is a member of the Royal Institute of Philosophy, American Society for Aesthetics, Mind Association and The Aristotelian Society. He was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of London. An editor of several journals, including "The Personalist," Hospers ran for U.S. President in 1972 (receiving one electoral college vote) and Governor of California in 1974 on the Libertarian Party ticket.

Hospers is one of the best libertarian speakers in the libertarian movement today. This is one speech you dare not miss (or Hospers will send the entire USC Trojan football team after you). (*come early, parking space is limited)

Lefevre's speech

Robert LeFevre is scheduled to speak on May 27 at 7:30 p.m. We are trying to have LeFevre speak at Chapman College or Santa Ana College. The next "Libertas Review" will give further details.

A brief background on LeFevre; he is a former newspaper editor, author, teacher and founder of Rampart College.

LeFevre has been the fountainhead of the west coast libertarian movement since its inception, boasting such prestigious graduates as Dr. Thomas Szasz.

We plan, at this time, to charge $2 per ticket.

Book Review

BY HOWARD HINMAN

Irwin Rodman is an industrial psychologist. In a nutshell, he helps companies and people find out what kind of a slot they fit in and/or what kind of slot they have available. Rodman's book, The Executive Jungle, deals with some of the various types of people he found in over twenty years of experience. (Hence the title.)

There are twenty-four or so chapters grouped into four sections. The entire book is well-written, with the first 11 chapters being a shining example of fine craftsmanship.

The "Los Angeles Times" comments that, "It is refreshing to find a popular presentation of industrial psychology... (a) readable introduction to a fascinating field."

The "Cincinnati Post" writes that The Executive Jungle is "an entertaining handbook for the person with a foot in the executive suite. Rodman... provides ammunition for the effective weapon--knowledge. His book is a guide to protecting a career and, perhaps, sanity."

Irwin Rodman, who recently joined SLL's Advisory Board, has offered a limited number of The Executive Jungle (hardbound) at the discounted price of $4. It regularly sells for $7.50.

SANITY TAKES A VACATION

It seems that everyone loves to hear about stupid and archaic laws. These are real laws; we don't have quite the imagination to make them up.

"It is against the law in Pocatello, Idaho, to go around looking peeved or dejected."

"Crocodiles may not be tied to hydrants in Michigan."

"A law in Florida requires keeping your clothes on while bathing, even in the family bathtub."

"It is illegal to wear a mask in Denver."

"In Pine Island, Minn., a man must remove his hat when meeting a cow."

ACLU AND THE LIBERTARIAN

BY LAWRENCE SAMUELS
SLL CHAIR

One of the best and largest "Civil Libertarian" organization is the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU). The only trouble is, the ACLU is very weak on economic liberty. However, since they are excellent on personal liberty, it should not be too hard to turn the ACLU towards a more pure form of libertarianism.

A number of libertarians, including a number of SLL members, are actively working in the ACLU to lead it towards a more libertarian position. However, change should be taken slowly. Libertarians should join the ACLU and work up to positions of leadership.

If change comes too fast, a backlash effect might occur. This is exactly the present situation with the Peace and Freedom Party. Libertarians moved too fast, capturing the leadership one year, and then to lose it the next.

This is not a deceptive approach. Every organization has its factions. Back in the 1960's, libertarians tried to have their voices heard in the conservative youth organization Young Americans for Freedom (YAF). The libertarian faction lost a bid for strong leadership in YAF in 1969, however, the libertarian faction has been strong in YAF ever since. There has been at least two nation-wide purges of libertarians in YAF, yet libertarians continue to pop-up in high leadership positions.

Hopefully, the ACLU will welcome an influx of libertarians into its ranks.
